Jyrki Raina is general secretary of IndustriALL Global Union, which represents 50 million workers in energy, mining and manufacturing industries in 140 countries. He was one of the main architects of the ground-breaking Bangladesh Safety Accord signed after the Rana Plaza disaster in 2013, which is helping to make the garment industry safer for millions of workers. With the leadership of Raina, IndustriALL has built partnerships with major industrial and retail corporations to secure workers’ rights and build collective bargaining structures to enable living wages in the supply chain. Raina holds a Master of Laws from Helsinki University.
